

Criminals can destroy your identity when they gather enough information, so beware the...

FRAUDOSAURUS!

Social Security Number:

A golden ticket that makes stealing your entire identity easy. ■■■■■■

Date of Birth:

Information required for nearly every account. With data, more common = more valuable.

Full Name:

Your full legal name, including maiden name or other aliases, gives criminals access to lots of other information.

Passport & Driver's License Numbers:

These give quick access to other information: full name, date of birth and address.

Phone number:

Criminals call impersonating officials, such as IRS employees demanding money. ■■■ ■■■

Email address:

Criminals can send you phishing scams in hopes you'll give them more data.

Bank Card PINs:

Criminals can get access to your cash without having to show additional information. ■■■ ■■■ ■■■

Account numbers:

They don't just care about your bank accounts. They also want your retirement information and insurance account information.

Mother's maiden name:

Common default account verification question for years; now, if you're given other options, use them!

Where you were born:

Common account verification information. ■■■■■ ■■■

ZIP code:

Seems harmless, but sometimes accounts require this information for added security. ■■■ ■■■ ■■■

Credit/debit card codes & exp. dates:

Common information required before making new purchases with a stored card. Imagine the shopping spree thieves could have! ■■■ ■■■ ■■■

Usernames & passwords:

Do you bank online? Do you share personal information via email or "the cloud"? Think of what criminals could do if they had access. ■■■ ■■■ ■■■
